Staatliches Museum für Völkerkunde

SWICH-Workshop 4–6 December 2017 INCLUDING VOICES FROM AFAR

Does the fact of distance have an impact on the inclusive museum practices? This workshop discusses participatory ethnographic museum practices from a different angle. A specific focus lies on collaborations with members of descendant communities that are not represented in the local post-migrant communities and what it entails for conservational and educational museum practices.

The workshop will also analyze and compare practices of inclusion in countries where museums are situated closely to native communities such as the Americas, New Zealand or Australia and museums in Europe where they remain guests from afar.
